He was addicted to drink while stationed at post in the depart-ment of Texas and was sent to the asylum for was also at the station as an accomplice, and little Phil Hardy was wanted by the of-ficers. The only real criminal was Master Carter, and he did not seem to have any just appreciation of the enormity of his crime. Seventeen dollars in money were taken from the house of Dr. Rich, and this fact was duly A New Ferry Boat to Be Built-Other Notes reported at the station. Later Officers Kendig and Bailley noticed the trio in question be-having in a very suspicious manner. The young gentlemen had never been noted for wealth, but when taken into custody There was a rumor this morning around the wharves that the Washington Steamboat Company would soon sign a contract with a Wil-

WHAT THEY THINK OF GEORGETOWN. Mr. and Mrs. Welling of St. Louis were driving through this region yesterday and stopped at one of the road houses on the Tenleytown road. They thought that Georgetown was a garden city, that it had a roomy, uncrowded appearance, was clean and well built up with pretty and comfortable homes. They believed that the country round about had a future and as the capital expanded would become a paradise of homes and as the a member of the harbor force.

Col. McKibben has returned from an excursion with Capt. W. E. Clark to Chincoteague island would become a paradise of homes and parks.

IMPROVING THE OLD TAYLOR HOUSE. The old Vincent Taylor house on M street near the Aqueduct bridge, which in the antibellum days of Georgetown was one of the principal mansions of the place, but which for a number of recent years has not been occu-pied, is now being thoroughly overhauled, and within a few months will once again be a credit to the town. B. H. Warder is the owner and McIntyre & Foley the renovaters. The house contains nineteen large rooms.

Secretary Lamont has announced his policy against the use of the War Department as a collection agency in the following circular: WASHINGTON, May 8, 1898.

Washington, May 8, 1892.

In the matter of applications to the department for assistance in the collection of the private debts of employes, it is hereby announced that the department will not act as an agency for the collection of private debts, but when it appears from proper evidence that a clerk or other employe persistently neglects or refuses to pay debts contracted for the support of himself or family, the person so offending will be discharged.

Collectors will not be allowed in the department, as they interfere with the transaction of ment, as they interfere with the transaction the public business. DANIEL S. LAMONT,

A Myth About Lithography. To the Editor of The Evening Star: Will you allow me once more to come back to pany would soon sign a contract with a Wilmington firm for the building of a new ferry a new steamer is to be built for this route, but it is not likely that she will be ready before next season. Last fall it was thought that a new boat would be launched and put on the ferry route this season. In this they were disappointed. There had been several talks noted for wealth, but when taken into custody they were spending their flushness in a reckless manner. They whistled for a bostblack shines. They hied to a lunch room and an astonishing amount of pie and milk. They paid $1 for a base ball, $3 for an air gun, bought a foot ball at a fabulous price and invested in a set of boxing gloves and other sporting goods. At the station Master Reddy shook his first at Master Carter and offered to punch him for having put him in the scrape.

Will you allow me once more to come back to the Senefelder myths? Reading my somewhat hastily written communication in your issue of last night it struck me that some one well informed on the subject might charge me with unjustly treating the two "myths" as of the same that a new box would be launched and put on
disappointed. There had been several talks as to what kind of a craft was wanted in these unjustly treating the two "myths" as of the same value. While the one quoted from "Science Liftings" is an entire fabrication the other has a basis in fact. The trouble with this second story is that the story mongers have tricked it up and have made of the washerwoman a sort of providentially appointed agent for the discovery of lithography, which is wide of the mark. Senefelder was led by the incident in question to experimenting in the direction of etching on stone in relief, which is not "lithography." This latter art, or "chemical printing," he did not invent until some years later.
